

Terms of agreement for the publication of e-documents through the E-LIB document server

1. Registration and online-publishing

The author grants the State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) the non-exclusive and irrevocable right to freely publish documents submitted through this service on the internet and to archive them on its document servers. The author shall retain all other rights to the work. The registration and submission of documents shall not legally oblige the library to publish works on the internet. Documents made accessible to the public through this service may be downloaded, saved and reproduced in small numbers for private and other personal use in accordance with German copyright laws (§ 53 UrhG1).

The registration and submission of documents shall not legally oblige the Library to publish documents in an electronic format. The State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) reserves the right to assure itself that all technical and formal obligations have been fulfilled.

2. Metadata

In the course of submitting works to the repository authors will be requested to provide a range of details (incl. a brief abstract) with regard to both formal aspects and the contents of their work.

3. Third-party rights

The publishing author declares that the publication of this document, and its individual components in the case of cumulative theses, will not infringe on third-party rights in any way. The publishing author agrees to indemnify the State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) from all claims brought by third parties. The State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) reserves the right to remove the author's work from its servers or suspend access if it has reason to believe that the work infringes on third party rights. The State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) undertakes to notify the publishing author of any such action.

4. The forwarding of data to the German National Library (Deutsche Nationalbibliothek)

The author grants the State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) the right to forward mandatory copies of the electronic version of the author's work to the German National Library (Deutsche Nationalbibliothek) in accordance with legal requirements (Gesetz über die Deutsche Nationalbibliothek). The State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) is also granted the right to make documents available to libraries tasked with compiling national collections, such as those libraries participating in the DFG funding program for special collections libraries. Within this context, these institutions are granted the same rights as the State and University Library Bremen (SuUB).

5. Long-term archiving and format conversion

The Library undertakes to make documents uploaded to the platform publicly accessible on a long-term basis and guarantees their availability for a minimum of five years. The author grants the State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) the right to store the work in a long-term archive and to convert it to other electronic and physical formats as necessary (for the purposes of data migration, enhancing barrier-free access, improving access, cataloging etc.) and to utilize the work in accordance with (1).

6. Dissertations, postdoctoral theses, and other theses

Where the work concerned is an examination thesis (e.g. a dissertation or a postdoctoral, Master's, Bachelor's or diploma thesis), the publishing author assures the Library that the electronic version submitted to the repository is a duplicate of the version approved by the respective faculty and that its publication has been approved by the respective institution.

In acknowledging the terms of this agreement, the author will provide the State and University Library Bremen (SuUB) with a signed copy of the Declaration of Consent for examination theses, dissertations and postdoctoral theses. Under the terms of this agreement, personal data belonging to the work, such as Curriculum Vitae, will be stored on electronic devices and made publicly accessible.
